

PREPARE FOR Future Success

Outstanding students gain an edge through
People to People
Leadership Programs.

Participation in People to People Leadership Programs sets students up for success in the global community. Students earn access to noteworthy leaders; past participants have met with Rudy Giuliani, Justice Antonin Scalia, NASA astronauts, Secret Service agents, and other fascinating people. They also receive a privileged look into important landmarks and sites, performing a wreath ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknowns or enjoying dinner at a foreign embassy.

With outstanding examples before them and the support of new friends from all over the world, Student Leaders also learn to examine their own leadership styles, develop key skills, and use their influence to give back to their communities.

History Where it Happened

The World Leadership Forum connects students with America's past. Young leaders explore historic Washington, D.C., and understand the legacy of founding fathers, presidents, veterans, and other heroes. Along the way, they discover what makes a leader great and how to apply leadership techniques to their own future opportunities.

The College Admissions Edge

Leadership Summits let students live and learn at a prestigious American university such as Harvard, Stanford, the University of Chicago, Columbia, the University of Pennsylvania, George Washington, Rice, UCLA, or Johns Hopkins. After hearing from noteworthy speakers and receiving advice from admissions officials, students are better prepared for their paths in higher education. They also delve into their specific areas of interest, whether learning to lead others or investigating careers in medicine and healthcare, business, film and the arts, or international diplomacy.
